Exam Topics
Course: Geopolitics of Energy

Professor Eirini Cheila

A. Climate change is a threat to poverty eradication. What are the tools and policies that are required to deal with the long-term threat of climate change and contribute to poverty reduction? To what degree does the USA-China competition impact these policies?

B. A number of factors make investment in renewable energy desirable, even in the context of fragile and conflict-affected situations. What are these factors and why? What is, according to your opinion, the role of international diplomacy and more specifically of I.O. in this issue?
